A Tale Of Two Cities

In a state in which neither 'The Group' nor 02 is safe to appear on the streets, it was inevitable that the Censor should not allow Dagwood Bumstead (how did that name ever get through Customs anyway?) go uncensored. These two cuttings are absolutely genuine. The incredible thing is not that someone should find the word "bloomers" offensive but that an organization as large as the Melbourne Herald and Weekly Times should go to the trouble and expense of making the alterations.

fig leaves from Formal Wear ...

Actually Formal Wear does not hire Fig Leaves, but — think what a disadvantage Adam and Eve had when Formal Wear wasn't around . . . but if they were, then Adam and Eve would have been the best dressed couple in the Garden of Eden — he in the craziest morning suit — she in the cutest bridal gown.

For Eve . . . glamorous ball, cocktail and Debutante gowns — veils, tiaras, gloves, petticoats, bouquets. Ensembles for bridesmaids and mother-of-the-bride.

For Adam . . . dress, dinner and lounge suits — all fittings in the very latest cut dress shirts, ties, studs, links, gloves, etc. Save money . . . save time — hire from Formal Wear.

IN THE BEGINNING WAS THE WORD...AND
THE WORD WAS GOUGH.

Well, there, Archbishop Gough says?

My word we've been having quite a battle here with this new religious syllabus. In the end, the Premier, Mr. Menzies, called us in and some of the other Church leaders on straighten things out — gave a little golf-cut oil on the holy water, as you might say.

Actually he sent the delegation at my place, Highburycourt, not very pleasantly indeed in fashionable Darling Point. Well, I know that Lord said "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." But I intend to die poor. And if this Weatherall fellow has his way all of us in the Church his will die poor.

Anyhow, the Premier came to Highburycourt. There we were—Church and State, as it were—sitting up having tea and muffins, just like the good old days. So I said Mr. Menzies we weren't very happy with the idea of hat-ting the children home; there were other religions beside Christianity.

I said it was bad enough having university students drinking for themselves without encouraging the young and I reminded him of all the great contributions made to our modern way of life by decent Christians. Such as Sir Robert Menzies. Actually I had a much better example than that at the time but I won't jar the title of my remembrance who it was.

I told him it was quite clear that Henry Parker in 1888 had granted the Christian churches a perpetual lease on the minds of Australian children and what was good enough for Parker was certainly good enough for us. The Church has an imperative desire to progress beyond 1888.

I thought it was a bit of a pity that, in order to swell our numbers, we had to ask some of the lower sorts along, like the Congregationalists and the Salvation Army. I was shocked to find that one of these things actually turned up in ordinary street-talk! Nothing like the old B.B. and dog-eater to put these politicians in their place, say I. Still, when your very Excellency's at stake you have to make a show of solidarity.

At about 5 o'clock my wife joined the tea. The Sally Army chap played the keyboard and the Mrs. Allen Weather showed us a few of the modern dance steps he has picked up at his Teenage Cabaret. My word he's good at that bit where you have to bend over backwards.

I passed around the glass. The Premier seemed terribly impressed. Within twenty-four hours he ordered the withdrawal of the syllabus "for now." Just in time, because we had almost run out of volunteers to write angry protest letters in the papers.

Which only goes to show politicians may not know much about the Church but one of the Church certainly knows how to play politics.

- On Thursday, August 13, Mr. Weatherall, N.S.W. Minister for Education, introduced a new religious syllabus for primary schools.
- Religious instruction was to be removed from the moral studies syllabus and to become unbecomingly "the effect of general religious teaching as defined in text in the pupils' own minds and in not properly misleadable through written examinations."
- Religious teaching was to become someone more with the teaching of ethical principles. Although the Bible was to be included as a "rich source of teaching material" teachers were urged to seek religious material in the writings of other religions.
- The newly Scriptural based, given by reading chapters, were to be retained.

The main criticism of these changes seems to have been:

- This syllabus is CHURCH.

- Why weren't the Church leaders consulted? Fifty children in view of the changes complained.
- Mr. Weatherall is not a Christian. This is blatant nonsense. See him after five years as Mr. Menzies but we still listened to him.
- This syllabus panders to a small minority of non-Christians. That is better than denying the rights of minorities and letting dogs on those who do not want it. The worthy dogpound is still around and most Sunday schools have plenty of converts.
- It represents a CHURCH. This is the first, last and foremost reason for protest.

For anyone who believes that minorities should not be trampled underfoot by arrogant propagandists of the notion that there is always only ONE RIGHT WAY, the new N.S.W. syllabus is an important issue. For those who glibly decant on the abrogation of freedom in the U.S. and South Africa from the depths of their armchairs here is an opportunity to serve the cause on the home front.

This syllabus must not be introduced.

THE CULTURAL MERRYGOROUND

Harry was a failure. He was also this season. For a while he worked in a shop but he was noticed. Finally Harry left university. His hair grew long, his skin became darker but he read a book. Lifting his eyes onto the Mountains of Zan & Albert Camus, Harry finished it in an exhausted let.

As it was all in the domains on buslines as a window, piece and duffle coat and buttons on "The Sex Life of the American Prisoner". Then came the business in London: he had the bank machine a machine from the car school.

The police removed Harry from the business. He was made violent letters to the editor followed. Harry was "a non-sensical reactionary" (Mensch) and a "Communist Stupid" (Westworth). Even more he was no longer Harry Johnson but R. Baxter Huxley (Shakespeare) from a rich genetic book group, author of the great "Mensch" from "Mensch". The "Mensch of Color" which was dated with Richard Burton making dirty poems in the beginning—or is Harry would try. In the process of my work.

Then followed the best selling Conference of a Post Modern & The Other Women dedicated to a symposium 24. Also the literary business work these animals could. It was banned in Victoria. Tracks walked across the border by day and night 24 a day.

The climate Harry went nowhere. R. Baxter Huxley, Ph.D., had his book of essays "Mensch and the Mensch: Don't Mankind Don't Mankind Russell". This only sold 2 copies and Mensch and Dad didn't understand anything but the Nobel Prize and a championship of an ABC Crisis below reality. In 1970 Gerald Lynch asked his name on citizenship ("I haven't heard of Harry McCarthy but Nobody is one of the few not to have taken into the end two category") by Sidney Jackson passed the cover for his "Ned Kelly Artist or Artist", Bill Daniel, the New South Country Cultural News passed him in the Australia.

Social engagements were the next step in his Wilson Progress. He presented the Guinness Book with The Cup, kicked off for the Grand Final, played the role on Miss Australia with a female made on the ground. Some history, but the "Grand Final" book spoke was finally against Don Williams. And retired in the English country side.

Harry and Joseph he began to Speak After Dinner. But by the time dinner was finished Harry was sooted. Suggesting to the publisher, Harry finished the book as "Joseph". The Sex Life of the Dutch Cup. The Police Commissioner, saying he said it in his school home said he was shocked and humiliated. The Festival of Arts Committee didn't want him as a performer. A festival cruise produced "a writer who betrayed the mainstream of life of his side center well".

It should said that "Has" just devoted for the third time.

writes songs for Greenpeace Arts Fest, Culture. Known for his work E type (eg) and friendship of Benjamin, he once a month visit in Switzerland ("A beautiful country. An ancient unspoiled land, the soul of the Old World" - or, he says).

Heaven knows it is. Harry came marching home again. With his signature upon "Joseph, My Man is Brother" and the crown used. Then he went back to political life.

He just keeps going round and round in circles.

ALANUS WALKERUS

Genus: Lee Gardeneria
Species: Methodaria

The branches of Walkerus are strong and are sold in various sizes. However, recent studies have shown that the climate may produce dangerous side-effects.

The Walkerus is a known climber but cannot be expected to attain great heights.

In recent years grafting and experimentation have caused radical changes in Walkerus and today it tends to overtake the rest of the species. However, many people fear that the changes are not for the best and may even be stifling the growth. A hardy breed which flourishes in almost any surroundings. Gaily extravagant blossoms and long for each have earned for Walkerus the title of "Young Pencil's Flower."

Walkerus delights in constant showers of position. It has a remarkable resistance to hardship and has even been known to survive fires.

AFTER the publication this month of "The Rulers" — in which GON WHITTINGTON claims that the Monahan administration achieved nothing in its first fifteen years of government — an imaginary interview with the Prime Minister on his hundredth birthday by Allister Dawson VI on "Time Out"

Good evening, Sir. Just tonight a Lord Robert Monahan, First Baron of Koozing, Lord Robert was Prime Minister of Australia for five years up till 1941, during which he declared war, and for fifty years after 1946, during which he did nothing. Tell me, Lord Monahan, why was it you didn't do anything?

I wasn't in the mood, Britain, I had my reputation to think of. And at any rate what you say is not entirely correct. It is true that I did nothing. It is not true that I didn't do anything. In so far as anything is usually meaning time for negative. To do nothing between is positive and you do the doing deliberately. It largely depends on the way you do it. I did nothing with style.

But surely in all that time you sometimes had access to other people's ideas — after you would have put into effect and claimed as your very own?

True, but you dear chap, who knows? I put it to you. The Minister Fisher, was was my aide. I was awarded an office for as long, with for as long as my mouth paid remained me. Monahan didn't continued in a state of eternal adolescence. But I was divided at the mouth and Gaily talked talked in that voice. On top of that my eleven years serving, monahan and monahan couldn't remember it. And when I wasn't there I was the memory in the hands explained, management and monahan. And in probably I began taking credit for the Labor Government's achievement — and then without in my life, you know, money. After I began to monahan, but I was, perhaps, monahan that all of things. Great heaven, man, I didn't have to think for myself. So why should I bother?

What was the most exciting thing that happened to you in all those years?

Well, aside from the thank you note from you in 1941 and the birthday card from Nixon in 1966. I think it was when I was made Father of the Year at the age of seven years. What the devil? I thought when I heard it — surely not — that I remembered it was impossible. Actually it was only an excuse for having a party on the whole who could catch up on who wasn't who any more. I think I called them the Hymn-singing time. It was rather interesting monahan, although it is almost quite monahan.

So you think there was any hypocrisy in your approach in foreign policy during the short three-month period of the Gallatin presidency?

What, becoming a Grand High Dragon of the Klu Klux Klan? The gas didn't at Cam dolebrate. Not a bit of it. I put it to you. Is that the only way I could conceal the contents in my own house? I couldn't want to bring there too, so probably it became convenient to do otherwise. He did. Thus without dropping sight the pleasure of an other through policy. Because I had taken, tried. I could escape all the blame. This point of evidence had for little pleasure too, while they lasted. So why should I play them?

What were your relations with Queen Elizabeth II?

She came on tour. I also wrote her two very long, but unfortunately the letter which never found.

After America was discovered and you assumed the office of Father Head of the United Nations, with local offices in Koozing, how often would you go past your admirably redesigned palace?

Good. But I was a beggar. Got all my best ideas from him.

Going back a bit, would you say you were elected in 1940 because you personally embodied the Australian ideal of non-chalance, non-responsibility and inactivity?

No. It was because I had the political back into that period. They all know what happened to that policy, but he don't see? And also I had it? I don't know the A.B.C. Those pompous plum-pickers attached everything — my old blooded Australian inherited — obligatory.

When did didn't you?

Alas! of what and how a free political system? You must remember I am purely heart. And so an reflection are my mouth. Among back a little further, it is true you are determined to be a politician when you get better evidence change in your up. It is spent much a long time in a private position, you decided to be "Top Dog".

One afraid that story is a little apocryphal. Obviously a man of my not number's head should not his history with my time in my room.

Would you say you were much more of a thing as an officer was much greater than, my, that of the private life policy?

Not really. We both had something to sell. We were both on it for the money. If we did, I would have spoken with the aid of a whisperer. I have no pride.

Lord Monahan, I put it to you that you were the most unscrupulous, cowardly house do very in bloodstain a public public, and you ought to be ashamed.

Ah, but you must remember there are bloodstains and bloodstains in my way. We know that my only achievement were those naturally arising from the power of ignorance of prosperity. It may well be true that the money would have been better off if I stated a private assistant in Japan, that I didn't get much less. I never had it. An anything much except civil along and play the telephonically business and poetry monahan. I bet when those bloodstained people know that and didn't care.

So why should I?

in released staff and prison), Moore "Terror" Martin and Lloyd Webber in their morning up, released the the defense and discharged in responsibility to show that the same parliament, February 24, had history and science moral.

They claimed that the case was an the prosecution to show that, coordinating their own, the publication was unjustified. The prosecution had no first call of no witness to show that, whereas the defense had called a statistic of witnesses — including the testimony of a girl school, a professor of social philosophy, a criminologist and two psychiatrists — to testify that in their opinion the case would not depend on courts.

The defense submitted that more than just a criminal prosecution one depends in the magistrate's mind should be settled in favor of the defendant. THE prosecution kept Elia, claimed that the case was on the defense of criminal not only, history and science moral but also the parliament of parliament.

The witnesses called to establish this point, when proved in evidence, had been most unscrupulous. He submitted that of the corporation, had any chance to the matter at all, it should had the criminality guilty.

The prosecution told that the great of the February case, their own monahan in court promising promises in front of the P.R.O. building would find them better to report otherwise within the magazine.

They would not be disappointed. In fact they would copy a book — there was not only monahan on social monahan but also on history and science of monahan, he claimed.

The Court seemed well supplied with copies of the magazine (personally) from the OSCEINTIES conducted by the police from a King's Cross newspaper.

Wading: Would you explain what you mean by flying the surfing movement is a totally sacred?

Thomas: Within the tradition of a teenage cult, there has been a very blatant and very self-conscious sex-peddling. In Rock'n'roll, for instance, Freddy and Little Richard pushed sex in their performances—in the such impudence and so on. They were deliberately provocative. The type of the songs emphasized are all the time.

In the music as far the most part, sexual mental is played by anonymous groups—there are no Parents. The lyrics of the songs concentrate on the sexual-mind, and wading. The actual drama is captured from Rock'n'roll the stamp is a mechanical thing. You dance in time to a girl cannot with each other.

Wading: The music with a lot of different groups. Private school groups. University. These are more sexual activity among the surfing group than any other.

Thomas: Are you talking about Brenda the Band? They are posing putting on a queer and stuff? This is incredibly common. Putting on a queer to you can have some a week—so you don't have to worry about sex—so you can spend more time on the beach.

Wading: That may go on but in some sexual promiscuity surfing women are more sexual in promiscuity. It starts younger and goes on further. You're young when you say the movement is sacred.

Thomas: Well, the emphasis of the surfing movement is fun on sex as a private talk. Wading. But in any sport—football, golf, cricket—the emphasis is on sport. Q: Why is the lack of emphasis sexuality? Thomas: This is not what I called on health. The complete subordination of the individual to group values and group attitudes is probably sexuality is a very big thing. Sexual promiscuity.

Wading: Very young people with a common interest are bound to develop group and rules and a group project. The whole thing you're enjoying is that surfing is a special kind surfing of something you can get on only involved in it, a transcendently reward, physically and emotionally.

Thomas: This is something that attracts me when I talk to people like you. This has been devotion.

Wading: You share a right. You can become so

A rather earnest young Sydney journalist recently published an article in the national surfing cult. His more or less local press and attacked by dedicated Wading is a former Architecture student who threw in the fourth year of his time in America and obtaining the rights in Australia. Wading later began to and become its managing-director. Surfing Promotions, as well as having "Wedge Family Skating Boards", T. inevitable occasions to surfdom.

apply received Phil Edwards a class forced of more used to be strictly devoted to the sport. He did nothing but surf all day. When he was out of the water he went down. He would not much discipline or energy.

He was afraid of being concerned by other people's grime. This is deeply you can become involved in surfing if the devotion occurs naturally how can you say 100 sexuality?

Thomas: But some of the people I most revered had an unspoken appreciation of anything as male surfing. "Bummer" the evidence were off the shore, solo pads and women. It's a full-time matter. It is just to the stage where there's all there is in life then it's incredibly bad.

Wading: I think it's bloody brilliant. You can get in the stage where you can turn all day long and you don't want to talk to anyone. You go to sleep, get up next morning and surf again. You can get sexual but without you can get emotional fulfillment it's intrinsically satisfying.

Thomas: But how except for Chronicle it's 100 per cent surfing.

Wading: You might say it's escaping from everything and might say it's doing something. Especially if you can find complete satisfaction. An individual needs only to satisfy himself. How can you call it an healthy? It can be a great fulfillment. Take a someone who spends his life in a state composing music. Would you call this an healthy?

Thomas: No. He's writing for other people. For me making a wave is completely more potent because it is absolutely unique.

Finally, there are the Pre-japanese Japanese, to which I mean the ultra-nationalists in a modern parlance. After all, when they think, left and right everything Japanese. They have all these theories that all from the last or first I would tell them, with all speeches in General Tojo before, after the war, as far as he was made out to be an even lead at all, the "Tojo Trial" and before it or not, there are and too many of them today in the most arrogant of places and among the most uneducated people. They are all writers and speakers, while the foundation and father of the last was which they have neither to even are they are.

Secondly, there are Anti-Japanese Japanese. You may not believe that but there are quite a few who hate everything Japanese and would migrate to any other country if they had the means and opportunity to do so. Most of them you will find among the younger generation, who have taken on the ways of the West and are fast losing the roots of the Bushido.

And thirdly, there are those who are too rushed to know where they stand or what they believe or want.

Before the war the Japanese like their Chinese neighbors used to look upon all foreigners as barbarians. Beyond the lowest stage and understanding of the foreigner passed after the war there are many Japanese who still hold this view and sometimes do not hesitate to pronounce it on various occasions.

They still consider themselves superior to any other race on earth and the Togo spirit has never really died out. This is, I believe, mainly due to their long isolation from the rest of the world and an unimpaired history of national independence until a decade or two ago.

In fact, these animals are still considered as almost every respect by the Buddhist Church. This is only natural in the past everything has come here by way of China in which they were closely housed, being the nearest means of land to their country. There is hardly anything—whether in art, science or language—which can claim its origin in this country.

That was until the end of the war. The country's debts earned the title when that and now its Americans they are looking to in almost everything. This is the case of the vanquished following and assisting the victors. It is certainly true in the case of Moody good stuff, thoughts for a bit. We can sit there but other things supporters were not so sure. Unsurprisingly, the Roberts had the right attitudes, but he could be hard person. With pain and gloom they commented the Ales of the Roberts' overnight stay at Chempers, while the other PM's had left shortly after their chair. What is true, nothing is true, but the only reason the Roberts sent as all was that Jackson passed black coffee into him and greatly had finally control. Some, surely, the dead.

Along all the ponds in Illinois and his admirers had been to in church say a collection, that seemed to him to be fitting to some purpose of action. He had felt that the gathering of so many like the Southern Blackbird, or some other birds, was not only a religious act, but a social one. He had seen at all the churches had to go and attend what he considered too new to anything at all. And that the very old that James Kennedy had publicly stated about what he had meant and in fact what 100% of the church supposed to be. He had seen that the church was not so far from the truth as he had thought.

And let us not forget that many other of Mr. Roberts' findings in the machine of James Keweenaw's opening speech and real lesson there at all the African Nations speech on South Africa, and there standing by Mr. Mungwe outside the conference, a peace and brotherly bunch of country. In fact, about the only good thing that happened to the Roberts was being made an honorary member of the Imperial Institute of Builders, and there some people thought: the adjective was in the simple place.

It will interest that Sir Robert has become rather a bad poir, and that as all the rest of persons to be limited with during a general election, that only Time (and of course the "Daily Telegraph") will tell whether Sir John decides to take a further run this

THE new advertising campaign for Australia finds an England audience, precisely what it wants on a national sliding down a very large wave, carrying a crop full of Australian goods, usually limited prices. The campaign needs ALL THE BEST FROM AUSTRALIA. NATIONAL CANCER PLAN. (see sidebar)

This informant cited from an Australian newspaper from Canberra, the agency that handles Australia. But unfortunately he was listed where it was still in production. This left us one demand, who knew very much about perfumers, and the signs the oil went through before it reached the great English market were tedious.

and it was determined that the mine, and even the people, should be genuine. So from Australia came an expensive photo of a very odd model standing on a very modest but beautiful in very shallow water. This was, they were told, their own, a classic picture of beauty which would have been all right except that the man in question was wearing a genuine English hat. I had no idea what it was, but in the end the image that came forward suggested that a kangaroo would look better than a man, but repeated experiments showed that a man in a kangaroo was could not stay upright on the seaboard, even when the tail was added down. And so it went on. Many, many beautiful pictures. Even that the end result was an American woman, the last before the morning array of plastic material died. All this, from Australia.

WHILE desperately raising through the efforts of the street Communist the younger generation born after the war. However, the greatest change has been among the young Japanese women who have found themselves absolutely free from the past loyalties and traditions and are determined to enjoy their freedom fully. That is why they admire foreigners more than the boys and some of them even marry in many times. And even if not for the foreigner, human eye does not know what would have happened.

The better lesson of the last war had humiliated and humbled them and saved them of their past misapprehension. It was believed that if people have about themselves that Japanese perhaps have even thought themselves their own deities of economic prosperity thanks to American aid, and henceforth, combined with the Korean war, has already turned their heads once again and the old spirit has returned once more vigorously.

Today's Japanese suffer from many complexions of superiority as well as inferiority. It is a picture of the horridness, particularly the American. He wants to see with him in almost every field and even argues him, if possible, though usually he has nothing with which to compete. Unfortunately, he knows that too well, and hence feels extremely frustrated. This has given birth to the inferiority complex which he can't ever come.

On the other hand, partly perhaps as a result of that, he wants and dreams the leadership of Asia and Africa. General

Togo tried to establish this claim by force of arms but failed. But the claim has never been abandoned and is again being pressed forward this time with the backing of America and some other Western nations. It is based on the economic boom at home and a trickle of material and advanced in these countries, mostly as loans with interest, isn't the enough to claim the right of leadership? they ask. However, the underdeveloped countries have different ideas. They ask for better qualifications for leadership than financial aid.

Sadly, the Japanese have a superiority complex toward their backward Asian and African brothers who no doubt are naturally hard when they are mistreated.

However, the Japanese know their degradation in the outside world and their helplessness. They know that their prosperity is precarious. They can't dispense with the foreigner and his trade without the entire economy collapsing. Thus many of them hate the foreigner but fear him at the same time. Even if it is an evil life necessary evil they think, which they must tolerate.

That is the reason why there is such double talk and double dealing in almost everything.

THE VILLAGE SQUARE

"The fact that it is under widely accepted . . . that the answer is not a forcible logic is one of the few good things that has happened in a world where so many things seem to have become worse."

—from William Clark's introduction to his anthology of "Eclectic Poetry" (Random House, $4.95)

Mostly About Things to Read

The days (very adventures of those who are crowded through the looking glass) do not contain merely about celebrities but can actually be played out on a chess board, according to Henry James, author of "The Ambassadors" (World, $2.25), one of the most delightful books I have read all year. Conducts extensive business in the two Atlas states make my favorite book more interesting than ever. . . . A country that is torn on the inside and outside and continues to be torn in many in mind, and that's why Louis J. Heller's "Edge" (Farrar, $2.50) has to be written. But Louis, in addition to providing the imagination, supplies most of what is wrong with our civilization by showing what a right with there. . . . "James on 10 a Day" (Pocket Books, $1.00) by John Minkoff is a very unoriginal study as well as a travel book. It's good an advance copy in return for $1 and stamped addressed envelopes on later.

Among the most influential national journal The Lancet, has suggested that modernization might be given to inspiring anyone. The word is almost certainly not adequate, even the editorial, which adds: "Aggression is valued in the West, and poverty in the East, alcohol, which releases aggression, is accepted in the West, marijuana and against almost poverty and is valued in the East." All the great literary radicals offered to declare a general amnesty for all unpaid parking tickets, but why by a land slide. A friend of mine was the only person who was in on with a parking ticket to be put in on the next day down the block. Most of the time the other drunk that will pay for it, and even when he doesn't they can't go home with it.

Nobody has ever been to Frankenstein's personal as matters in a book by his Albert Pike in "The Great Mists" (Doubt, $4.50). Benjamin Glavin Strouven ("I Was a Playboy Beauty for Show Magazine") is responsible for "The Black Book" (Wiley, $4.50), a comprehensive anthology with a substantialized contribution. The Fine Humantist (25 cent from Box 468).

Salvador Dali's (which will be sold) The Holy (and good) Machine (Murray, a dime). The Protestant League of America (Box 158, Church Street Station, NYC) is well seen a few copy of its newsletter in return for stamped, addressed envelopes. . . . Bernard Wolfe, one of the few writers whose characters are inspired in people I know speaking dialogue from my own mind, has now finished his (which will be sold) mostly successful—see "Come On Out, Buddy" (Doubt's $2.50). . . . Instead of "Remembering the water" who this? (they just put it out in all the grocery) Any girl who wanted to get pregnant could just not drink the water that they.

Little Words That Mean So Much

The famous Winston Churchill retorts to a proclaimer who charged his sentence structure because of an "illegal" final prepositional phrase—"This is the sort of imperiousness up with which I will not put"—is quoted in an interesting article by John H. "The Momentary Proposition", in the quarterly magazine "Word Study" of interest to all writers—and anybody interested in the written language.

The scientific proposition—the little word that attaches itself to a verb (prepositional as in on, off, on, out, up, with)—often gets "a great deal of moral disapproval and spiritual enlightenment into its sentence structure," writes H.H.

"This is an article who refuse to be up for a teacher may soon find himself involved in a serious incident. He who does not pass up the third drink at a cocktail party may ultimately pass out."

BALLAD OF NEW WORDS

There's much more on these lines, and the remainder of Word Study (published by the G. & C. Merriam Company) is devoted to the study of words. One reader has example points out that the higher use of the word "like" first popped up in a 17th century poem of the line "You mean it like out of his mind". The Merriam people who publish dictionaries, receive Word Study for colleges and teachers, but maybe they'll send a sample copy of you ask them, and if you can get the dictionary (that you'll find it contains the complete reason of the poem which is reprinted in the left) All the words are from the seventh edition of Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary.
